Tasting Notes:

Predominantly Pinot Noir with a splash of Chardonnay, this full-bodied Champagne has marked oak influence and richness. Peach, pear, apple pie, lemon curd, almond biscotti, toasted hazelnuts, brioche, vanilla, peppery spices, wood, freshly ground coffee, and red berries and cream topped with mint leaves. In other words - fantastic!

Producer Overview	Champagne Henri Giraud is the oldest Champagne house still owned by its founding family – the Giraud-Hémart family has farmed vines at Aÿ since 1625. However, it is only since current head Claude Giraud took over that the wines have been released under the family name. What makes this producer so exciting is the lack of stainless steel in their winemaking. They favour the use of terracotta, sandstone, concrete eggs and most importantly, Argonne oak casks. (Trees from the historic Forest of Argonne have been used in the production of Champagne for ten centuries.) Although the popularity of vinification in oak is growing in Champagne, it is still relatively rare, but it places Henri Giraud in the illustrious company of the likes of Krug, Jacques Selosse, Billecart-Salmon and Bollinger. Read more online
